

David D'Arcangelo

Director, Massachusetts Office On Disability

Summary

David D'Arcangelo is Director of the Massachusetts Office On Disability and is a Malden City Councilor At-large.

David is considered one of the Commonwealth's most prolific political activists and was the 2014 Republican nominee for Secretary of State.

David was also Managing Director for Arc Angel Communications and Adjunct Faculty at Suffolk University.

With over 22 years of professional experience, David has been the catalyst for a large number of successful public endeavors including winning political campaigns, corporate turnarounds and non-profit triumphs.

Having served five Governors and as an aide in the State Senate, David is one of only a handful of public servants to have inside working knowledge of both the Executive and Legislative branches of Massachusetts State Government. Appointed by Governor Mitt Romney to the Mass. Commission for the Blind Rehab Council and reappointed by Governor Patrick, David is considered a leading authority on public policy issues regarding disabilities. He has also served in leadership positions for several Boards and Commissions, which has helped to make David one of the most trusted and respected sources for public affairs and civic information.

David's private sector experience is highlighted by the incredible transformations of a companies that were losing money and now, through David's expertise, are turning a profit. A polished public speaker, writer and team player, David has demonstrated strengths in: Writing, Financial Management, Issue Advocacy, Technology Integration, Public Policy, Campaign Management, Team Leadership and Event Organization.

David has an impressive 3-0 record as a Campaign Manager and ran one of the most successful State Senate campaigns in state history. His innovative plan for "Sunsetting Campaign Warchests" has been editorialized and received critical acclaim, as has his Constitutional amendment to alter the Massachusetts Constitutional amendment process.
